AMC America's Largest Entertainment Company

Today as I was watching television I thought to myself--how wonderful would it be to be able to catch a couple of matinees or evening flicks on the big screen. All I know is, what I did not want was another generic, huge monolith of a building that you typically see off of those huge interstates. The good news is there is a new cinema opening downtown that blends the convenience of multiplex with the classy styling of main street America.

The facade has traditional lines that you would see on a typical storefront. Once you enter the building, it opens up into an expansive space filled with all of the comforts you would expect in a modern multiplex, from arcade games, to popcorn machines, to fountain soda dispensers. Believe me when I say, give this place a try--you will not be disappointed.

A local shop owner stated, "I look forward to the crowds that it will bring to our downtown business district. It will definitely add more panache."

"Oh how Shakespeare would have loved cinema!"
